
Whatcha think?

Posted by Lynne - 2008/07/14 14:21

We just set up this new forum, and are wondering what you think - about the forum, but also about Prescott eNews in general.

C'mon! Jump in and give us your thoughts!

=====

Re:Whatcha think?

Posted by mspeights - 2008/09/06 06:54

I love the idea of having a forum for Prescott area residents to use online, and I think the website has been cleverly designed to integrate all topics and useful information in our community. I am surprised, however, that more people aren't aware of it! It would seem that a big marketing effort could help get the word out about the existence of this terrific website. More and more folks in our community are relying on their computers to access and disseminate information related to their businesses as well as keeping up to date about events, issues and local news. If you haven't already done so, you might want to get a panel of volunteers to help pass the word, or partner with local businesses to include your website link in their mailings. Your web designers/graphic artists have done a masterful job of producing a user-friendly and attractive site that deserves much more exposure.

=====